Yes, I'm sorry. Movie: Always (English name) / Only for you (letter name) Roman edit: Ohjik Geudaeman Hangul: 19 Director: Il-Gon songwriter: Song Il-Gon, Roh Hong-Jin, Yoo Young-A Producer: Moon Bomi Cinematographer: Hong Kyung-Pyo World Premiere: October 6, 2011 (Busan International Film Festival) Release Date: Nov 20, 2015 October 2011 Runtime: 108 minutes Type: Melodrama / Romantic/Blind/Tearjerker Supplier: Showbox Language: Korea: South Korea [Synopsis] Cheol Min (So Ji Sub) is a former boxer with a dark past. Now Cheol Min works as a parking doorman instead of an elderly grandfather, Cheol Min works by sitting in a small post with a small TV. Suddenly a woman named Jung Hwa (Han Hyo-joo) approached her and sat next to her. Jung-hwa gave the orange and cheol min food, later realizing that the woman was blind. After Cheol Min spoke, Jung Hwa panicked and asked Cheol Min, who and his grandfather watched every day at the post, Cole Min explained that his grandfather came out and he replaced him. Jeong-hwa then departs and apologises because she often comes to see the play with her grandfather, as it rains, Cheol Min takes Jung-hwa to the shelter while watching his favorite drama. The next night, after work, Jung Hwa sat in the post to watch a play with the blind but still cheerful Cheol Min, making Cheol Min attract her. Jeong Hwa asks about cheol min's past, which invaded Cheol Min, the relationship between the two became strained... A few days later, jung-hwa's boss abruptly arrived at Jung-hwa's house and tried to harass Jung-hwa. Luckily Cheol Min came, so Jung-hwa survived Cheol Min, near Jung Hwa, and stayed together, Cheol Min happily tried to be a boxer again to earn money. Jung Hwa tells the story of why she was blinded by a car accident involving her and her family, which involved Cheol Min indirectly, Cheol Min, who felt guilty for asking Jung-hwa to undergo surgery so that he could see it, because of his high cost, Jung Hwa refused, and cheol min insisted that he had savings. Too bad when returning to Korea, Cheol Min is stabbed and hit by a car by his enemies so that he is disabled.
